Thinking Out Loud

By H. M. L.

A strong light beats about candidates always. There is a reason. Employers of public servants want capable and honest men in office. They discuss almost everything that has a bearing on whether a candidate is qualified and many things that having nothing to do with the matter. Sometimes, though fortunately this is rare, a good man is defeated for office because of some personal peculiarity, some early escapade, or some association or relationship causing popular disapproval. But as a rule in a small county, the candidate best fitted for the job he seeks is chosen. In a small community the life of practically every citizen is an open book tht anybody can read.

In the pages of the Nugget, each issue, there appear the names of all the candidates for county offices. We think the merits of everyone of them should be carefully weighed by the voters. The personal integrity and character of all of them is good. Choice only lies among their qualifications, backgrounds, training, and abilities. About these there is room for difference of opinion. This is what makes elections and horse races interesting.

Four or five of those running for re-election to county offices are unopposed. There is only one construction to be placed on this condition. The occupants of those offices have rendered such satisfactory service, or the service rendered is so specialized, that to oppose them on the ballot seems hopeless to most office seekers. Holders of these offices are too strong in public favor. The electorate, satisfied with their work, just as private employers often are, refuses to turn them out of office to put an inexperienced man in their places. County officers, especially in the smaller counties, who do a good job can usually count on re-election. This is as it should be in a democrary.

On a nation wide scale the election of Franklin D. Roosevelt to a third term is a demonstration of the reluctance of the people to retire a public sercant who has given a service definitely pleasing to the majority. Whether or not history will vindicate the majority judgment is another matter. Several American presidents are barely mentioned in our histories and such mention as is made does not sustain the popular decision. Measured by this standard the majority can be, and frequently is wrong. There was for instance, General Grant. A master stratagist but a very unsatisfactory president. But nothing is too good for American soldier heroes.

In national affairs the popular will is most adequately reflected in the House of Representatives. The reason for this is that the representatives must return to their constituencies every two years and give an accounting of their services. There has been an evil tendency of late years to judge a representative by the carloads of bacon brought home. This

Ex-Consul Of Warsaw, Visiting Here, Tells Of German Atrocities In Poland

The last American to leave Warsaw at the time of the Nazi invasion was a visitor all last week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Rafferty on Prospect Hill.

The man, W. R. Morton, retired American consul, is an uncle of Rafferty, law enforcement officer of the Tahoe National Forest.

Morton is now making his home in Watsonville. During his stay in Nevada City he went on several fishing trips. Like all other persons who ever visit Nevada City he admires the climate, the scenery and the people. He left with the hope soon to return.

From personal experiences Morton found the atrocity stories concerning the German conquerors in Poland and other invaded countries are no exaggeration of the facts.

When Morton left Warsaw he was taken to Moscow by the Russians, who at the time were allied with Germany. Later he was released and returned to Warsaw and was in the Polish capitol until the consulate was moved to Berlin.

In a little town near Warsaw Morton was an eye witness to shocking German atrocities. He saw more than 100 men, women and children hanging from improvised gallows. They were hung by military police in reprisal for the killing of two members of the Gestapo in a tavern.

While walaking to his office in Warsaw after the country was taken by the Nazis Morton stated it was not uncommon to see many bodies on the streets with cards in the lapels telling of the time they were shot and warning those without permits to keep off the streets at night.

At the time Morton let Warsaw hundreds of persons were at the point of starvation. In Berlin Morton found rationing cards were necessary for all food.

Clerks in Berlin stores, Morton said, became angry when Americans didn't answer their "Heil Hitler" salute. Morton left Berlin for the United States in March of 1940.

Morton served in the consular service for the United States in Europe for 25 years. Previous to service as consul at Warsaw he held similar positions in Scotland and Greece.

Five Wasley Brothers Are Govt. Workers

The William Wasleys of Town Talk are proud parents.

They have five sons in government service in one way or another.

Their youngest son, Ed Wasley, is in the United States Navy and recently the Wasleys here were notified he was promoted to third class petty officer.

Lauren Wasley is working for the government in war work at Vallejo. Two others, George and Cecil, are employed on the army cantonment project near Wheatland and Howard and William Wasley are employed by the government in the Nevada City Postoffice.

NEVADA CITYAN FINED $250 FOR DRUNKEN DRIVING

G. W. Keller of Nevada City was fined $250 by Justice of the Peace Jean Dittemore last week in Colfax on a charge of drunken driving. In addition his driver's license was suspended. According to the judge it was Keller's second similar offense within two months. He was arrested by Highway Patrolman Lyn Lardner.

WHO SAID THE YANK WAS LOSING HIS RAZOR EDGE?

Meet Bill Leak, who doesn't let a little matter of financing deter him from war work. Bill set up shop in Gus Helback's garage in Hills Flat. Before the war, Bill was one of the expert machinists that Helback could count on 24 hors a day to do a right job.

Came the war and a sudden—ahem—lull in business. It looked as though Leak was out of a job. But he didn't think so. He just couldn't be convinced he was on the street. He had an idea. It required money, so he went to a bank and the banker said NO. That's that, said Bill to himself. So he went out and sold a piece of real estate that wasn't doing him any good just then.

He went to the state representative of the WPB and the man said YES. So Bill went to work with very few tools and only a little money. He had a lathe, but he needed a turret lathe. Even with a million in his jeans he could not buy a turret lathe nowadays, so he took a barrel, ripped out the top filled it with fire bricks, did a little casting, made the thing revolve, and attached it to his lathe. That made a turret lathe. The turret, revolving presents various tools as needed, to bear on the metal that is being turned in the lathe.

Just recently they had an exhibition of Bill Leak's contraption in the Hotel Whitcomb, San Francisco. Harley M. Leete, Jr. went out to see it. Young Leete is on the staff of the Drury Company, advertising agency, 114 Sansome Street, San Francisco. A lot of engineers and expert machinists looked over this home made turret. Some moguls in the manufacturing-war-materials game, saw it too. Bill was asked to make more of them. He made two more and sold them quick as scat. Young Leete wrote an article about it for "San Francisco Business," a San Francisco Chamber of Commerce publication.

But Leak really is not in the business of making turrets for lathes. He has a subcontract and is making plumbing fixtures and cabinet handles for the Hotel Supply Company, which in turn supplies them to shipbuilding firms for installation in ships.

Now how did Bill, manage after he got his orders and backlog and whatnot? He had to have expert help. So he just rustled until he found a miner, who was a machinist and who could give him part-time service. He needed a molder and discovered an elderly man who knew how to do that. Thus he recruited his working force, and the Selective Board won't touch 'em.

Graphite from India is one of the hardest things there is to come by these days. It is used in crucibles. Since crucibles were something he must have, Bill canvassed the mines and found crucibles not in use that he could buy. He had to have a lot of brass too. He found all he needed in mine junk heaps and bought that. He had secured priority rights to the use of brass but the WPB was much delighted when he rustled his own.

Bill Leak has made some 2000 pieces already and sent them down to San Francisco. There was nary a reject in the lot. He has a comfortable backlog. Is this a success story? It is!

Shasta Judge's Comment Elates Frank Finnegan

Frank Finnegan, Democrat, candidate for Congress representing the 18 counties in the Second Congressional District on both the Democratic and Republican tickets, returned to Nevada City Friday from a tour of a portion of the district well pleased with the reception accorded him.

Finnegan, Nevada City attorney, stated he hopes to visit every community in the district before the Primary Election, August 25th.

The aspirant for the congressional seat, now occupied by Harry L. Englebright, Republican, was elated by an incident while in Redding. In quest of Francis Carr, attorney and Democratic leader of Shasta County, Finnegan entered the superior court while a jury trial was in progress.

Superior Judge Albert F. Ross recognized the Nevada Cityan and interrupted the court to welcome him. Ross, in the presence of the jury, litigants and counsel, remarked:

"I'm a registered Republican but I'll say this much. I know your opponent's record and I will not support him. In my opinion he had only one good vote in the last session of congress and that was the fortification of Guam. Even that was too late to do any good. All the rest of his votes were bad."

Newcomers Find Nevada City Fine Community In Which To Reside

ARE WE NEVADA CITY RESIDENTS UNDERESTIMATING THE ADVANTAGES OF OUR COMMUNITY?

It appears so. No doubt most of us have developed itchy feet at one time or another during the past year to leave for so called greener pastures—in fact hundreds have done just that.

BUT DID YOU KNOW THAT FOR EVERY PERSON THAT HAS LEFT NEVADA CITY SOME ONE ELSE HAS MOVED INTO THE COMMUNITY TO TAKE THEIR PLACE? AND THAT POSSIBLY HUNDREDS MORE WOULD LIKE TO MOVE HERE IF ACCOMMODATIONS WERE SUITABLE?

That may be hard to believe but it is true.

Outside of apartments there is not one available decent place in which to live in Nevada City, we are informed by local realtors.

Where are the people coming from? Everywhere, is the answer. Many cantonment workers are establishing their families here. Many wealthy retired persons are coming to Nevada City to make their future homes. Many families are in Nevada City for the summer vacation period.

What attracts them to Nevada City? From newcomers we learn they like the climate, the surroundings, the pleasantness of the people and one of the most important things—the water.

New residents find living in Nevada City is conducive to good health. There are no hot sweltering days to sap strength and the nights are always peaceful and cool. Good, clear drinking water is always available.

Gold mining in Nevada City has declined due to the necessity to lend every possible effort to the war but real estate prices have held up remarkably well.

Nevada City is learning it has additional advantages and resources besides its treasures in the bowels of the earth. Nevada City as a homesite for those in their declining years, and as a place to spend peaceful weekends and summer vacations for those who still labor, is becoming widely known.

The local Chamber of Commerce, as well as real estate men, daily receive inquiries regarding the living conditions here and whether there are any homes available, either to rent or for sale.

NEVADA CITY'S FAME AS THE GATEWAY TO THE BEST FISHING SPOTS IN THE STATE IS SPREADING FAR AND WIDE AND THAT IS ANOTHER REASON WHY SO MANY STRANGE FACES ARE SEEN DAILY. NO MATTER WHERE THEY COME FROM OR HOW MANY, NEVADA CITY IS HAPPY TO WELCOME ALL NEWCOMERS.

Rubber Continues To Pour In Here--More Needed

The Nevada City Rotary Club collected 1871 pounds of rubber yesterday in a city wide drive.

Nine hundred and eighteen pounds were donated and the proceeds were turned over to the Nevada City scouts, who aided in the rubber gathering.

In various other ways a large quantity of rubber was gathered yesterday to further increase Nevada City's contribution. Mrs. Mary Davies of Cement Hill contributed 230 pounds.

Many children lined their pockets with silver through their rubber gathering efforts. Tommy Price made $8.00 from rubber that he turned in. Other kids made similar amounts and more.

Nevada City and Yreka, communities of comparbale soze, are conducting a contest to determine which city can collect the most rubber. It is not known just how the two towns stand today but Yreka had a 15,000 pound head start when the contest was suggested and it is believed the Siskiyou city is still in the lead.

Caught in the Riffles

Did you see Pine Street and sidewalk in front of the Masonic Hall entrance today? It's a sight to make any one's eyes sore. About ten broken beer bottles were scattered helter skelter. And no street cleaner to take care of the mess.

Ray Wilde, Jr., (you've seen him walking around town on crutches) has a notion to put a sign around his neck reading: "I'm getting along fine, thank you. No, I didn't have an accident. Just an operation to correct a knee injury."

Ray just a few days ago was able to get around on crutches and every one he sees asks him how he got hurt and how he is getting along. Now Ray is practically hoarse from answering the questions and looks upon the sign idea as a remedy to relieve the condition.

County Clerk R. N. McCormack had the best Father's Day possible. His son, former deputy clerk, was transferred to Sacrameto and was able to secure a pass to visit Nevada City on Father's Day.

Sergeant Mervin Doolittle is believed to be the only Nevada Countyan with the United States armed forces in England besides Miss Nancy Jones, Red Cross nurse. Doolittle is a graduate of the Nevada City High School. His brother, Eddie, is in the Navy . . . Al Sommers daily takes a jar of Nevada City water with him when he goes to work as assistant safety engineer at the army cantonment and during the noon hour he is besieged with requests to share it with other cantonment workers literally dying for a drink of nice fresh mountain water . . . Herbert Hallett, examining a baby's rattle which had been donated to Max Solaro's Christmas toy supply, suddenly threw it to the cement floor of the fire house as if it were a rattlesnake. He crushed the rattle to bits with his foot. It was made in Japan!- . . .

Rolland Garwood deserves commendation for his efficient care of the swimming pool. Rolland doesn't stand for any foolishness and all the youngsters are able to have a good time without fear of the rougher element pushing them into the water or endangering their lives by holding their heads under water. This is Garwood's second year as life guard. He is not yet 21 but he handles the job like a veteran. Water change at the pool is to take place each Thursday.

REAPPOINTED PASTOR OF LOCAL METHODIST CHURCH

Rev. David Ralston was reappointed by the Methodist Conference to serve as pastor of the local church during the coming year. The conference gathering was held in Stockton during the last week.

Mrs. Ralston, who recently underwent an operation in San Francisco, has returned to the Ralston home here to further recuperate. Mrs. Ralston is now getting along fine.

SEA POWER ON WINGS

First from the Coral Sea, then from the Battle of Midway have come two imposing lessons on the new strategy of naval warfare—lessons of a sort that such confirmed airmen as Major De Seversky have been preaching since long before the present war started.

One of the lessons was brought home by the striking similarity of two comments made on the same day by reputable observers, one concerning Coral Sea, the other Midway.

"It was a battle of aircraft carriers . . . the modern rulers of the seas," said Stanley Johnston, Chicago Tribune correspondent. "The surface fleets which fought the battle never saw each other, and during most of the fighting were from 80 to 180 miles apart. This is the story I have to tell—the first of its kind in all history."

On the day when Johnston's article appeared, the current Time magazine was carrying this comment on the more recent Midway battle.

"So far as the communiques indicated, the greater portion of the two fleets never got within a day's sailing distance of each other. Most of the action was fought by aircraft."

Both of these sources also pointed the No. 2 lesson of the two engagements. Time did it with particular clarity.

"In the Japanese fleet of battleships, cruisers, destroyers, and submarines, the capital ship was the aircraft carrier. That fleet, built around sea-borne air power, had to retreat before U. S. air power in a still mightier form: The land-based airplane, now come into its own as a dominant weapon of naval warfare.

"The U. S. not Japan—is stronger now and potentially, in long-range heavy load, land-based army bombers of the kind which sent the Japanese reeling back from Midway: and it was in this fact, rather than in the actual comparative losses at Midway, that the U. S. saw the face of victory."

These two battles—Midway and Coral Sea, are America's two greatest naval engagements of the current war. Their lessons—that sea power is worthless without air power to cover it, and that land-based air power is far superior to sea-borne air power, when the action is within range of land—appear to be conclusive.

The important thing, of course, is that any remaining die-hard "battleship admirals" join the public in general in recognizing that the aircraft carrier has replaced the obsolescing battlewagon as the capital ship of the fleet.

For it seems plain that sea power is destined from now on to ride on wings, not waves.—Sacramento Union.

A TAX OR A KNIFING?

The pettiness shown by the house ways and means committee in voting to raise the postage rates on newspapers and periodicals is amazing, and obviously nothing more than a childish retaliation for well-deserved criticism that has been leveled at the present congress by nearly every newspaper in the nation.

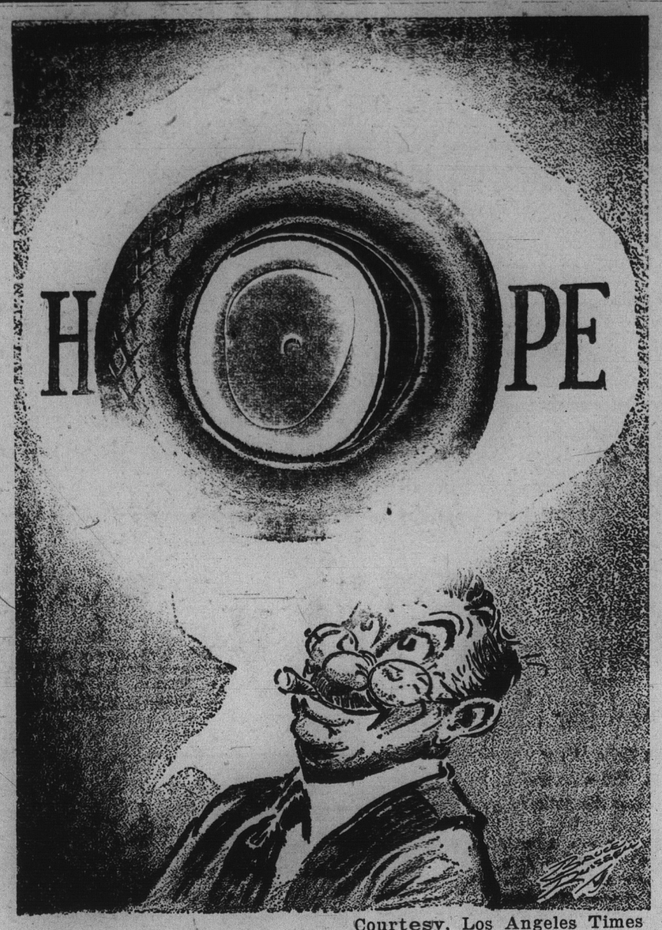

From time immemorial, all regular newspapers, magazines and other periodicals, big and small, have been handled as second class mail, under a special rate schedule and specific restrictions and regulations imposed by the postoffice department.

The committee's recommendation that second class rates be raised is termed a revenue producing measure, but it actually is a virtually undisguised slap at the press in general, for calling the public's attention to the many serious failings of this particular congress—not the least of these failings being the disgracefully dilatory manner in which this very group, the house ways and means committee, has held up action on the tax bill.

But if congress is truly interested in the revenue-producing possibilities of tampering with the mails, as well as old-fashoned back-stabbing, it would do well to look in its own backyard.

For it is well known that the volumes of franked hot-air which congressmen themselves sent out, and the reams of publicity drivel that the various departments put out—all in postage free envelopes—costs the post office department a lot more than the special rate now granted for second class mail.

The members of this committee had best stick to levying taxes to win the war, instead of misusing their unquestioned taxing power by wielding it as a club to silence critics.—Sacramento Union.

POULTRYMAN'S PRAYER

Written by Harley M. Leete, Jr. Heard over KJBS daily at 12:30 p. m., except Sunday.

Amidst the somewhat deafening roar,
Of this Armageddon of war—
Let's scan a human interest tale,
Of a chicken farmer's plaintive wail.
This good man, fixing hen feed mixtures,
Has his mind upon new bathroom fixtures.
He has petitioned WPB,
That they would his dilemma see.
His ranch house has no bathing tub,
He needs priority, there's the rub.
And since his farm house lacks a bath,
He's faced with his bethrothed's wrath.
For farming in the desert heat,
A chap cannot keep clean and neat.
As leghorns scamper 'bout his legs,
He garners up their new-laid eggs.
His cheekens love him, but his queen,
Demands a husband spotless clean.
We pray this Romeo may get,
A gleaming tub for Juliet.
He wants to be a married man:
In wedlock's bliss, round out his span.
War Board—your blessing on this house,
For rancher, hens and future spouse.
Unless mercy with your justice mingle,
His way of living shall be single.
Authorities, there surely is no harm,
In sprucing up this lover's charm.
A refusal here might be invidious,
He surely is not too fastidious.
Deny this country Galahad,
And you'll create an odor bad.
So rule upon the human side,
That he in marriage may abide.

FATHER'S DAY

Please do not forget to remember,
Tomorrow at least is one day,
When that cheerful and prominent member,
Of the family can have his own way.

Tomorrow old Pop comes into his own,
Three cheers for Pop today.
Give him cigars and an ice cream cone—
Tomorrow's Father's Day!-

It's Pop, of course, who pays the bills,
And pays, and pays and pays.
We hope his life with cheer now fills,
To the very end of his days.

Perhaps Dad's hair is getting thin,
And his tummy's growing like mad;
But growing old's no cardinal sin,
And hes still a wonderful dad.

He's the chap, when things are broke,
Can fix 'em right away.
He can laugh right out at a practical joke,
And he works like the Dickens all day.

In the past he's oft been forced to work,
On the weeds that grow in the garden.
Tomorrow you must allow him to shirk,
Or otherwise humbly beg pardon.

Tomorrow Dad sits in the golden chair;
At last he's king in his house.
If it's silence he wants—it's only just fair,
That all must be still as a mouse.

Or perhaps a party is what he'd like,
Or to play with his little boy's train.
Or to take a ride on the family bike—
Do not scold him or make him explain.

Father, you've gone through a heck of a lot,
And done it all for the best.
So this day for once, you're not on the spot.
And well-entitled to rest.

Your family likes you pa—they do,
And you've a long way yet,
To go before you're nearly through—
Still full of pep, you bet.

Well dad, the point we're trying to make,
In these poetic pranks.
Is—as a Dad—you take the cake—
Our hearts are full of thanks.

THINKING OUT LOUD

view too often distracts the voter mind from other things far more important. When your representative brings umpty ump millions of public works to your district you may bet your bottom dollar that he has swapped his vote with the rest of the House members for other millions to other districts and every dollar of it will come out of the tax payers pockets eventually, except of course those government works which are revenue producing. But even these in the long run cost the tax payers a pretty penny. After one hundred and fifty years, it should be one of the self-evident truths of a democracy that any enterprise which the government controls and owns will cost easily many times more than it would under private control and ownership. This for the simple reason that the federal government has never yet been required to show a profit, and as a matter of fact never has shown one. These remarks can refer only to normal times and conditions, not war times.

War is an incredible waste regardless of what kind of government wages it. But there is no question that war costs democracies far more than autocratic governments. The present war will probably cost the United States more than the sum of all its other wars, and perhaps as much as all other belligerents on both sides combined. If memory serves there has never been a real accounting of any war in which this country was engaged, after it was over. The popular sentiment seems to be "the war is over. We have won. The victory was worth what it cost."

The only question which the voter considers, during the war or afterwards, is whether the members of congress did their part well. That is a question which confronts the nation today. One third of the senate membership and the entire House of Representatives is to be elected this fall. In every senatorial and representative district throughout the land the record of senators and representatives is being closely scrutinized. Did they, or did they not obstruct the war effort of the nation? It is a vital matter and we surmise that many congressmen will fail to pass this test.

LOCAL REALTOR FILES ACTION TO GAIN COMMISSION

A. C. Presley, local real estate man, has filed suit in the superior court against K. J. Phelan, retired farmer of the San Juan Ridge, and Vincent Bellett, San Francisco, seeking to recover $700 allegedly due as commission on the sale of the Phelan Ranch.

The complaint charges that Presley entered into an agreement with Phelan to sell the ranch for $7,000 and he was to receive 10 per cent commission. He advertised in a San Francisco newspaper, according to the complaint and Bellett answered the ad.

Bellett came to Nevada City and Presley alleges that he took Bellett to the ranch and at that time Bellett was willing to purchase the ranch but that he and Phelan entered into a conspiracy to defraud the plaintiff of his commission by falsely representing that Bellett was not willing and able to buy the property.

Later Phelan served written notice on Presley that the agreement to pay the commission was off. On March 25th of this year, Phelan sold the ranch to Bellett for $7,000 the complaint sets forth.

BARBARA ANNE PHARISS IS BRIDE OF CLYDE MITCHELL COFFER

Before an altar profusely decorated with many varieties of flowers, Miss Barbara Anne Phariss, attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Phil Phriss of this city, yesterday afternoon became the bride of Elyde Mitchell Coffer of Sparks, Nev., at a double ring ceremony in the Methodist Church.

The wedding was performed by Rev. David Ralston.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attractively gowned in a formal wedding dress of white chiffon and finger tip veil and carried a bouquet of blossoms from the orange grove of Mrs. Phariss' father in Southern California.

The bride's attendants were Margaret Phariss, her sister, teacher in Austin, Nev., and Mrs. Jean Sherman of Nevada City. Walter Jenkins acted as the best man. The ushers were Phil Angove and Ellsworth Sherman.

Two beautiful wedding songs, "Because," and "Drink To Me Only With Thine Eyes,' were sung by Jack Warren, director of the Methodist Church Choir. Miss Barbara Warren accompanied him on the piano.

Following the wedding a reception was held at the social hall of the Methodist Church. The couple then left for Sparks, Nev., where they will make their home.

The bride is a graduate of the Nevada City High School. She also attended the Placer Junior College. She was active in the Rainbow Girls, Epworth League and Methodist Church Choir.

Coffer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Coffer of Sparks, attended Grass Valley schools. He is now employed in Sparks. Mrs. Coffer came to Nevada City for the ceremony.

160,000 YOUTHS TO REGISTER ON FIFTH R-DAY

SACRAMENTO, June 22.—Local Selective Service Boards are preparing to sign up approximately 160,000 young Californians in the Fifth Selective Service Registration which will take Place Tuesday, June 30, 1942.

This was announced today at State Headquarters in Sacramento, in a statement that all men between the ages of 18-20 years, namely, those born on or after January 1, 1922 and on or before June 30, 1924, are obliged to register.

Arrangements are being completed for a speedy registration of the nation's younger manhood in order to meet unprecedented War Department demands for additional thousands of selectee-soldiers.

Preparations made during the past several weeks have resulted in not only the setting up of necessary machinery in the 284 local boards, but also the allocating of 2500 additional registration places in large metropolitan areas and sparsely settled regions where large distances would necessarily be negotiated by registrants in order to reach their local boards. Special boards will also be set up in colleges and defense plants where men falling within the established age group may be concentrated.

Local boards and additional registration places will be open between the hours of 7:00 a. m. and 9:00 p. m. The services of several thousand volunteer registrars have been obtained in the completion of a swift and speedy registration, and registrants are requested to cooperate fully by appearing early and being prepared to answer the nine questions which appear on the registration card.

State headquarters warned that all men with the 18-20 years old age group must make every effort to register during the registration period. If, because of illness or other unforseen circumstances beyond his control, a registrant is unable to register at that time, he must do so as soon thereafter as possible. Willful failure to register will result in severe penalties established by law.

Any person who must register while away from his home should be careful to specify his home address so that his registration card may be forwarded promptly to his own local board.

Asserting that the registration will involve no complex procedure, it was poined out that the questions on the registrant's card pertain only to his identity, address, the person who will at all times know his address, and his employer.

Registration should take no longer than five minutes for each individual, although it is anticipated some cases may require more time in securing and establishing the required information.

State headquarters further pointed out that no questionnaire will be completed by registrants when they register June, 30, but that such questionnaires will be sent to registrants after their order numbers have been determined by a national lottery, to be held in Washington, sometime in the near future.

Institutional and Industrial Users of Sugar to Apply For July, August Allotments

All institutional nd industrial users of sugar, that is, all units who registered on Form R-310, are required to make application on Form R-314 for their allotment of sugar for the months of July and August.

Application is to be made at their local War Price and Rationing Board from June 20th to July 5th, inclusive.

It is essential all applications be made during this period as Local War Price and Ration Boards are instructed to grant no sugar certificates, if application is not made with in this specified time.

Local War Price and Ration Boards are located as follows:

Grass Valley at the Chamber of Commerce. Miss Edith Scott, Secretary.

Nevada City at the City Hall. Geo. H. Calanan, Chairman.

The weight value of Stamp 5 War Ration Book 1 is 2 pounds. The stamp is valid from June 28th to July 25, inclusive.

Will retailers who find it necessary to secure an increase allowable inventory of sugar please contact their local War Price and Rationing Board immediately.

Necessary To Shovel Snow To Open Lookout Door

Sam B. Kasper, lookout on the Sierra Buttes lookout of the Tahoe Uational Forest, reports that it is necessary to shovel snow in order to open the door at the station. Sam says the country is wet down better than he has even seen it, which is good and welcome news for all of us.

He also informs us that the "high spots" in the Lake Basin country are well patched with snow at this late date. At the station proper there is more mushy snow than has been observed over a period of four yers. Due to the late storms, some ridge drifts are nearly twenty feet in depth.

The forest service telephone line crew recently checked and repaired the lines in the Sierra Buttes area and all are sporting a healthy bronze from snow glare. It took from 4 a. m to 2 p. m. to reach the Buttes over snow packed trails with pack animals and equipment.

FIRE SEASON DEFINITELY HERE

The fire season is DEFINITELY on in Nevada County.

Yesterday the state division of forestry fire fighting crews were called out on three fires and early Saturday morning the fire fighters were called to the blaze which destroyed the Alta Hill Grocery and Service Station.

The most serious of the three fires yesterday was the one which destroyed the garage and an automobile at the Phillips Ranch in Gold Flat. The other two were minor grass fires.

The Alta Hill Grocery Store fire routed the owner, Ray Vroman and his son, who were sleeping in the rear of the store. Nothing was saved by the Vromans. Loss was estimated at about $4,000. The origin of the fire is not known.

Harboring Fugitive Charge Filed Against Grass Valley Man

Emmet J. Seawell, assistant United States attorney in Sacramento, has filed a complaint in the federal court against Joseh Dechene of Grass Valley, Nevada County, on the charge of harboring a fugitive.

Dechene was taken into custody by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation when they searched his home and found Jack Stahl, 34, his son in law, hiding in a cupboard. Stahl was wanted on a charge of driving a stolen automobile from Reno to Grass Valley last Saturday.

Stahl was arrested in Grass Valley on Sunday. He complained of being ill and while in a hospital in Nevada City jumped from a window and made his escape.

The FBI agents went to his father in law's home and Dechene denied that Stahl was there. The officers said he permitted them to search the house and that one of them saw a suspicious pair of shoes below some clothing hanging in the cupbord. They discovered Stahl hiding behind the clothing.

Seawell said the complaint against Dechene is indicative of the government's determination to prosecute anyone who harbors a violator of federal laws. He said this case points particulrly to selective service law violators who are known by their friends or families to be fugitives. He said those harboring draft violators will be prosecuted to the fullest evtent of the law.

Tire Shortage Fails To Daunt Fishermen

The shortage of automobile tires and prospect of gasoline rationing doesn't seem to have discouraged local nimrods from visiting their favorite haunts. Surveys made by Ranger Hodgson of the Big Bend ranger district and Dick Rafferty of the Nevada City forest office show that the usual number of fishermen are frequenting the rivers within the Tahoe National Forest. The mapority of these sportsmen according to Rafferty, have signed up with the forest service as fire volunteers and are taking an active part in the prevention of fires by familiarizing fellow sportsmen with the fire regulations as well as cooperating with forest officials in the suppression of small fires. Forest officers are making a concerted effort to sign up all forest users as forest volunteers to act as a reserve labor supply should an emergency arise.

ENGINEER MIITCHELL IN L. A.

Staff Engineer Gerald Mitchell of the Tahoe National Forest left Wednesday on official business for Los Angeles. Mitchell will attend a regional conference of forest engineers to study a plan for the consolidation of forest service equipment in an effort to save rubber and gasoline for the war effort.
